

General topics for Japanese II

- Cooking project
- learning upwards of 120 Kanji and compounds
- family projects; involving clothing, physical descriptions
- proverbs, onomatopoeias / further into Japanese mythology, holidays
- impolite, casual form / progressive form; casual letter writing
- colors
- body parts
- directions
- create and participate in a Japanese survey or ankeeto
- comparisons
- expressing opinion and intent
- more detailed weather

Grade breakdown:

40% Tests, projects, essays

30% Listening and oral (Tests once a month, as well as in class participation and assessment)

20% Quizzes

10% HW

Rubrics are used for projects, essays, dialogues, presentations

Every Monday, quizzes, tests, and long-term projects are written on the board.
Homework is given regularly, but is not written on the board.

Quizzes:

- Kanji Quizzes are once a week, on 5-7 Kanji from the appendices in the Genki textbook
- Kanji flashcards for non-shaded compounds and written proof (10x each) for shaded compounds are due the day before the quiz and are counted as a homework grade.
- Vocabulary quizzes are approximately once every two weeks, with flashcards due the day before.

Students may make up 4 quizzes per quarter, but unless under extreme circumstances, are not allowed to make up tests**

Once a month:

Reading selection/passage/story

One on One interview with the teacher

Listening Test

Essay on a variety of topics/Oral presentation

Dialogues; either a memorization of a story, passage, poem, or a conversation between two or more people

Tests

- Tests are usually grammar driven and will include vocabulary and Kanji
- Reading comprehension tests are from the reading selections and are intended to help with SAT-type reading skills, including skimming.